The Saturday Bake Sale

Priya's soccer team planned a bake sale to buy new practice cones.

Families brought muffins, oatmeal cookies, fruit bread, and small apple pies.

Priya made price cards with thick markers before customers arrived.

Each muffin cost one dollar, while a bag of cookies cost two dollars.

Her friend Caleb counted the money and recorded each purchase on a sheet.

A brief rain shower moved the tables beneath the park shelter.

By noon, only three fruit breads remained on the longest table.

The team earned enough money for twelve bright orange practice cones.
