Weather Notes from the Rooftop Garden

Jada set up a weather station at the rooftop garden before class on Monday.

A thermometer hung in the shade, away from brick walls and direct sunlight.

The rain gauge stood on level ground where no roof or tree could block falling rain.

At nine o'clock, the thermometer read 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The wind vane pointed west, and a ribbon showed a steady breeze.

No rain had collected, so the class entered zero rather than leaving the box blank.

Jada checked the units beside every number before posting the chart.

The class planned to compare readings taken at the same time for five school days.
