Counting Birds Along the Oak Grove

Gavin joined a bird count at the oak grove shortly after sunrise on Wednesday.

Pairs of students stood at separate marked stations so they would not count the same area twice.

Each pair used binoculars and a picture guide to identify birds before recording them.

Gavin's pair observed 12 ducks during the first fifteen minutes.

The group paused when a loud maintenance truck passed because the noise changed bird activity.

After the truck left, the students completed a second fifteen-minute count.

They kept the two time periods in separate columns instead of combining the observations.

At school, the class compared stations to find which habitat had the greatest variety.
