Weather Notes from the Park Shelter

Hana set up a weather station at the park shelter before class on Thursday.

A thermometer hung in the shade, away from brick walls and direct sunlight.

The rain gauge stood on level ground where no roof or tree could block falling rain.

At nine o'clock, the thermometer read 52 degrees Fahrenheit.

The wind vane pointed west, and a ribbon showed a steady breeze.

No rain had collected, so the class entered zero rather than leaving the box blank.

Hana checked the units beside every number before posting the chart.

The class planned to compare readings taken at the same time for five school days.
