Restoring a Faded Mural

On Tuesday, Omar joined a project at the community hall to restore a historical mural.

The team labeled 7 observation points so every result could be traced to its source.

They used archival photographs and recorded the units beside each measurement.

Two students checked every entry before the group compared the results.

Their first comparison showed that the original border used deep blue paint.

The group kept an unexpected result in the table and repeated that measurement instead of discarding it.

Based on the evidence, Omar proposed that the team test pigments on a sample board.

The team saved its method, dates, and raw observations so another group could repeat the investigation.
