Recording a Neighborhood Story

Ava interviewed Mr. Harris about changes in the neighborhood shopping street. He remembered when a small grocery store occupied the corner now used as a plaza. Ava prepared open questions but avoided interrupting while he answered. She recorded the conversation only after receiving clear permission. Mr. Harris described weekend markets, winter snowstorms, and a famous elm tree. After the interview, Ava checked the recording against her written notes. She sent a short transcript to Mr. Harris so he could correct any errors. The approved story became part of the library's neighborhood history collection.
